Page 2, paragraph 5, line 5, should read:

"This combination we call "net merit," realizing,of course, that in some cases net merit can be higher or lower according to the kind of mates the animal would have if kept for breeding."

Page 3, paragraph 13, line 3, should read:

"Even crossbred sires may be used provided both breeds which were crossed to produce them are breeds which cross well with all the breeds from which came the sires and maternal grandsires of the females on which these crossbred sires are to be used."
